

The Olive Branch Foundation

Fighting Poverty and Corruption through Education.

Now you can make a difference.

Donate to the Olive Branch Foundation.

When you donate to the Olive Branch Foundation where does your money go?

All donated money goes to the project, nothing is taken out for expenses at this end, all administration tasks are carried out by volunteers, all promotion tasks are done by volunteers, see the website for how you can help.

- Your money does not go to shipping companies, all materials are sourced locally, benefiting the wider community.
- Your money does not go to corrupt officials, it goes directly into school funds.
- Your money does not fuel apathy and a culture of begging, the children are taught in a way that breaks the cycle of apathy, begging and corruption.
- Your money really does make a difference.

The Olive Branch Foundation is a project set up to build and maintain a school in Kadongo - Kenya - East Africa. Free from governments and officialdom the school is being built and run from direct donation. Materials and supplies are then purchased locally at local rates, making your donations go further.

How can you help:

With your help we can break the cycle, fuelled by some other charities of apathy, begging and corruption. The children of Africa need aid, but given in a constructive and empowering way, it is the only way lasting change can happen.

You can do something spectacular today.

To build a school is to build hope.

To build hope is to raise up.

To raise up is to make strong.

To make strong is to make independent.

To make independent is to make free.

To make free is the greatest gift of all.
